Melissa Smith Copyright Prohibited 2012 Dear Brother Tree, may I sojourn with thee perhaps, for one minute, an hour or the entire day? May I rest upon thy trunk, wilt thy embrace me with thy branches? Oh let me never be without thee for within thy embrace is the wellness for my being. Rev. Melissa Smith Introduction On every continent of the Earth, trees exist. It is difficult to travel anywhere upon the planet without seeing a tree. Trees are necessary and essential to the everyday life of all life upon and within Earth. Trees provide shelter to man and small creatures. Trees provide food in the form of fruits and nuts that feed man and the creatures of the Earth. Throughout the planet, tree bark provides wood for the building of homes for shelter and furniture. Trees clean the air and keep the atmosphere free of toxins. The green and blooming flower trees provide visual and physical stimulation that is pleasing to the being of man. Throughout the ages, man realized early the importance of trees to the existence of all that was, is and ever shall be. Over 2,000 years ago, Enoch, Hermes Trismegistus, Yeshu, the Christ plus many other messengers tried to guide man into a harmonious coexistence with trees and nature. The sacred knowledge that they possessed was not a secret and was left behind to endure for all time. However, their words were removed and kept hidden that the seeds of truth of the Prime Creator given unto them were not planted into the hearts of man. Herein, are excerpts from the messages and...
